

One day in Naples 1889 the king of Italy Umberto wanted a baker to make a special flat bread for his wife Margarita; that was unusual because only poor people ate them.

The baker made one for her with the colours of the Italian flag basil for green mozzarella for white and tomatoes for red.

She loved thee pizza and soon everyone was eating it

Gradually, people from Italy went to America and they brought pizza with them... suddenly pizza was everywhere!

